IN HIDING, EH?

She had looked at innumerable blankets. None pleased her. Airily she said to the salesman: "I was just looking for a friend."

"Well, madam," he replied, a steely gint in his eye, "if you think your friend is in one of those blankets on the top shelf, I'll be glad to look."

ADAM'S ALE. STRAIGHT

The lush stood at the bar and the bartender wanted him to leave but decided to give him one more chance.

"If you guess the ingredients of the drink I mix for you, I'll let you stay," he said.

Vodka, pepper and brandy went into the concoction. The drunk tasted it and named all three. The next time it was cointreau, gin and cream—and he named them correctly. He blindfolded his eyes as the bartender tried again. The mixman went through elaborate motions and once or twice and said, "Buddy, you got me stumped," and walked toward the door, turned and continued, "but I be you won't make any money on that one."

REAL TACT

A salesman was proposing to his best girl. "And sweetheart," he finished, "I'll lay my whole fortune at your feet."

"It isn't a very big fortune," she reminded him.

"I know, dear," he replied, "but it will look awfully big beside your little feet."

He got the girl.

Control of Coast Guard

The coast guard operates under the treasury department in time of peace but as part of the navy in time of war by an act of 1915. Two bureaus established in the treasury department in the 18th and 19th centuries have grown into our present coast guard. The first was the revenue cutter service approved by President Washington, August 4, 1790, an organization that examined papers, made customs estimates, etc., an aid to customs officials. After the Civil war the life-saving service, which also became an independent bureau within the treasury department, was founded. Finally on January 28, 1915, President Wilson established the coast guard in lieu of both bureaus, adding that it "shall constitute a part of the military organization of the United States," and would operate as stated above.

Packing By-Products

Tankage and meat scraps are by-products of the packing industry. They are excellent protein supplements for hogs of all classes and ages. These products cost considerably more per ton than grain or protein supplements which contain less protein, therefore are often wrong though economical. Only a small amount of tankage or meat scraps is required to balance the hog ration, as the crude protein comprises 50 to 60 per cent of the weight of the feed. These feeds are rich not only in protein but both are rich also in calcium and phosphorus.

EVELYN MAE WAEGNER KENTUCKY GIRL ENGAGED

TO WED ISAAC LEWIS

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Waegner, of Louisville, Kentucky, announce the engagement of their daughter, Evelyn Mae, to Mr. Isaac Lewis, son of Mrs. G. W. Lewis and the late Rev. G. W. Lewis, of Appomattox. Miss Waegner has been engaged in secretarial work, and for a few years associated with the Intercession City, Florida.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Worth More Then

"Zeke," admonished the farmer, "when I took your calf to pasturage you agreed to pay me one dollar a month for the accommodation. Five months have gone by, and you haven't paid me a cent. If you don't pay me right away, I'll have to take the calf."

The old darkey shuffled his feet, frowned, and plaintively replied, "Mister Jones, dat calf am wuth mo' than five dollars."

The farmer was obstinate. "You pay me or I will take your calf," was his ultimatum.

The darky scratched his head, pondered briefly, and then replied: "I'll tell you what I'll do. I believe dat calf am wuth mo' than five dollars, but if you will keep him for one month more, den I'll give him to you for de pasturage."

Hunting Parlance

Most common boners in the vocabulary of many people when they speak of sporting arms and ammunition are the following words: Bullet, when they mean cartridge, which is a complete round of ammunition; cartridge, when they mean only the projectile; gun, when they mean rifle, which is a rifled arm; rifle, when they mean shotgun, which has a smooth bore; pistol, when they mean revolver, which has a revolving cylindrical magazine; revolver, when they mean pistol, an arm without a revolving cylindrical magazine.

Long Live the King!

Apparently the phrase "The King is dead; Long live the King!" originated in France where it was used to announce the death of a king and at the same time to proclaim his successor, signifying that the people were never without a sovereign. In "Louis XIV and the Court of France in the 17th Century," Julia Pardoe, an English historical writer, told that "The death of Louis XIV was announced by the captain of the bodyguard from a window of the state department. Raising his truncheon above his head he broke it in the center and, throwing the pieces among the crowd, exclaimed in a loud voice, 'Le Roi est mort!' Then seizing another staff, he flourished it in the air as he shouted, 'Vive le Roi!'"

New Man-Made Fiber Expected to Be Stronger

Fortisan, a new, man-made fabric is expected to be the strongest material yet developed. Although the textile is still being studied, it probably will first its first use in foundation garments, but would have the advantage of fine color age and would outlive the garments for the linings ordinarily used in these garments. They should wear exceptionally well because of the unusual strength of the fortisan fiber.

Fortisan was made possible by a special chemical process which allows acetate fibers to be stretched to a very fine yarn. This stretching lines up the chemical molecules in such a way that they have great affinity for each other, thus accounting for the extra strength. Research is being done to find a method of weaving which will keep the yarns from slipping at seams and other points of strain.

Fortisan was created during the war for making parachutes which could lower heavy metal equipment.

FRAISES HOME AGENT

"Scatter ye roses while ye may." Recently I heard a man say that June is the month of brides. All through he ages June has been known as the month of roses, and as I see it, now is the time to send our compliments, through our county paper to one who has worked so faithfully, in spite of many disappointments and hardships, sharing the results of her broad experiences, and confidential smiles with the many home makers who haven't been so fortunate. I don't think we are mistaken when we say, practically every home in the county of Appomattox has been improved, directly or indirectly, through the fine influence and unselfish aid of our very dear home demonstration agent, Mrs. Ella S. Anderson, to whom we extend our appreciation and gratitude for her loyal and faithful service.

IN MEMORIAM

"MOND. In loving memory of our father on Father's Day.
You left his world of sorrow,
And are far from pain and harm,
And now rest in peace and comfort
In the Blessed Savior's arms.

Some sweet day we will see you,
Father,
Then we will tell you o'er and o'er
How we missed you since you left us,
When we meet to part no more.

You are gone but not forgotten,
Never will your memory fade;
Loving thoughts will always linger
Around the grave where you are laid.

Historic Relics Unearthed by War

G.Is Fall Into Cemetery at Least 10,000 Years Old.

CINCINNATI. — The entrenching tools of G.Is and bombs and shells turned up many archaeological treasures during the war, a professor of archaeology at Johns Hopkins university said.

In a speech here, Dr. David M. Robinson said the war did much damage to valuable ruins but that some of war's effects were on the credit side.

G.Is, far more interested in safety than in ruins, dug gun emplacements and foxholes at Paestum during the Salerno campaign. They "fell into a prehistoric cemetery," dating back to the Neolithic age, about 10,000 B. C. Italian archaeologists then took over the digging chores.

In Pompeii, he said, a bomb which did a little damage to a fifth century Doric temple also "proved to be a good archaeologist by digging up previously unknown archaic terra cotta revetments and other architectural pieces."

At Aix-en-Provence in France, the rain of bombs uncovered something which had eluded the classical excavators — "a late Greek villa with fluted Ionic columns and mosaics near an ancient swimming pool."

The Germans, feverishly digging antiaircraft emplacements in France in their futile effort to stop Allied raids, accidentally found a Celto Ligurian village with mutilated statues of armored warriors and a beautiful female head, Dr. Robinson said.

The Celto - Ligurians were conquered by the Romans.

The bombing of Canterbury, Dr Robinson said, "led to the discovery of a Roman city built soon after 43 A. D."

The work in England which gave the Allies the airfields for the aerial invasion of Germany also gave the archaeologists a new find — a Celtic wooden temple dating between 300 and 300 B. C.

Dry Cleaning

Dry cleaning is safest if done in the open air, which carries away hazardous vapors, and with no flame, spark or fire nearby. Children and pets have no part in the process and need to be kept away from possible disaster. A plunger or a stick, not the hands, is the proper instrument to use. Not only does it protect hands from hard use, but they will be just that much farther from the danger point should an accident occur. Do not rub the clothes; it may cause the fluid to ignite — good scouts have done it with less potent materials than cleaning fluid. Many people do cleaning at home, but the safest method is still to send clothes to the dry cleaner.

Tomato Diseases

In a wet season, tomato plants might be infected with the two foliage diseases, Alternaria and Septoria leaf blight. These diseases can be partially controlled by use of fixed copper dusts or sprays but gardeners will find the dusts more convenient to apply. Dusts which contain 7 per cent insoluble copper are most generally used. Such dusts can be purchased at most hardware or drug or seed stores. The dusts should be applied in the morning while the dew is on and if the wet weather persists it will be necessary to make five or six applications to get reasonable control of the foliage diseases. The application should be made 5 to 10 days apart.

Production Sets Peacetime High

Despite Gaps in Supplies and Labor Troubles, Record Is Broken.

WASHINGTON. — In support of its recent claim to an all-time record in the production of consumer goods, the office of war mobilization and reconversion has boosted its figure on national production.

Despite great gaps in the supplies of consumer goods, officials said first quarter production actually was estimated at a 4,154 billion annual rate, and this figure may be increased as final reports come in.

Reconversion Director John W. Snyder's quarterly report gave civilian production as "more than 150 billion dollars," which President Truman said was greater "than ever before in the nation's history, in war or peace."

The report brought a backwash of skeptical criticism, mainly based on the question, "If production is so good, where are the cars, radios, shirts and stockings?"

When taken up with OWMR, the question produced a flurry of statistics put together by Snyder's staff from figures and estimates of the commerce, agriculture and labor departments and the civilian production administration.

Lists Highlights.

Summarized, some of the highlights are:

1. Autos, refrigerators, sewing machines, electric ranges, alarm clocks, and some other goods are far below the peak 1941 level. But they loom much larger on the want list of the impatient consumer than they do in the tally of total production.

2. Tires are soaring far above 1941's big output. Washing machines still behind but coming up rapidly. Yet the consumer demand is so fast that scarcities will persist.

3. Vacuum cleaners, electric irons, and bicycles are all at two-thirds or better of the 1941 average.

4. Farm production this year will be 13 to 15 per cent above 1941, given average weather. Per capita food consumption will be about 4 per cent above the all-time 1944 record—even when trimmed down to feed Europe.

5. All transportation of goods, except waterborne, is well ahead of 1941, far ahead of "prosperous" 1919. This covers air, highway, rail and pipeline. Rail carloadings are lower than in 1941 but the cars are fuller and their mileage greater.

6. Other signpost industries—power, gas, oil and coal (before the bituminous strike) — are producing substantially above their 1941 peaks. Sales of electricity to big industrial and commercial users are 33 per cent above 1941, the heaviest previous peacetime year.

Steel Bounces Back.

7. Strikes and other problems held down pig iron and some other metals in the first quarter. However, steel has bounced back almost to the prewar rate while the new metals, aluminum and magnesium, are running well above.

The most noticeable laggards, textiles and hard goods, don't pull down the total greatly, because Snyder's 154 billion dollar figure takes in the production of all goods and services except those bought by the government for military use. It includes the digging of coal, the services of laundries, barber shops and truckers, the output of farms and fisheries, even the showing of movies and the housing of hotel guests.

OWMR said its production estimate, though expressed in dollars, is not merely a reflection of inflated prices. When the 154 billion dollars is boiled down to 1941 prices it becomes 122 billion dollars, they stated, and this tops 1941's 107 billion dollars as well as 1929's 88 billion dollars.

In other words, OWMR said, the physical volume of goods and services is at record height, as well as the dollar value.

See Imprisoned Clients In Jailhouse, Is Edict

SPENCER, W. VA. — Jailer W. P. Rogers has laid down the dictum that whenever lawyers want to consult imprisoned clients, they must do so in jail.

While he was transferring an inmate accused of non-support from the Roane county jail to the office of Attorney Robert DePue, the prisoner escaped.

When he reported the incident to the court, Rogers said the judge informed him that any future such occurrences would mean the jailer would have to support the prisoner's family or go to jail himself.

"I'm playing it safe from now on," said Rogers.

Christianity Is Gaining, Japanese Out of Bibles

TOKYO. — The Christian movement now sweeping over Japan has exhausted the supply of Bibles here. The Rev. Kiyoshi Hirai, general secretary of the Japan Bible society, reports the present number of Christians in this country is about 300,000 and rapidly increasing, while only 10,000 New Testaments have been received up to this time.
